

Going Lean: Yellow Belt Program

What is a Lean Yellow Belt?

A Lean Yellow Belt is an individual with broad training in Lean principles, techniques and tools. The Lean Yellow Belt is well qualified to participate and contribute as a full member of a Lean improvement team, and to contribute in a lean production environment. As a Yellow belt, you might be expected to demonstrate some leadership and to mentor and assist other team members who have less Lean training and knowledge, but you would not be expected to act as Team Leader until you have gained additional practical experience in applying Lean in the workplace.

This Lean Yellow Belt Training is a flexible program that offers you the opportunity to learn on-line at your own pace. On successful completion, you receive a Professional Lean Yellow Belt Certificate and full academic achievement transcript listing your marks for each of the courses taken. This qualification is portable and we can provide verification for an employer or prospective employer if needed.

Audience:

The Lean Yellow Belt is comprised of a set of interactive, multimedia, training courses. These on-line courses are intended for managers, administrators, operators, technicians, engineers, and trainers who require comprehensive initial training in Lean to prepare them to contribute in a Lean process workplace.

Requirements for the Lean Yellow Belt Certificate:

- Six required courses that form the core fundamentals of Lean practice
- Completion of all six courses including assessment testing for each course
- A minimum academic mastery level of 80% achieved on each assessment test
